Ward 15 Councilman Matt Zone elected president of National League of Cities

by Jack Craciun III

On November 19th, 2016, Cleveland Ward 15 Councilman Matt Zone was elected president of the National League of Cities (NLC) at the organization's 2016 City Summit in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Zone, who served as NLC's first vice president in 2016, will lead the nation's largest membership and advocacy organization for city officials.

From reinvigorating his ward's main thoroughfare, Detroit Avenue, into the award winning Gordon Square Arts District and contributing to Cleveland becoming the "America's Hottest City"

(Forbes Magazine October 27, 2016), Councilman Zone's focus is rebuilding Cleveland into a world-class cultural destination city.

His public service accomplishments at home now demand of him to accept the 2017 Presidency of The National League of Cities, and he has just returned from Shanghai China where he was honored as the Keynote Speaker of the China Society of Administrative Reform Forum on "Urban Governance in the Context of New Trends of Urbanization: Challenges and Responses."

Within 60 days after Michael J. and Mary Zone were married in September of 1944, Michael enlisted in the U.S. Army and left to serve his country overseas in World War II. Captured by the Nazi's during the Battle of the Bulge, he was sent to Bad Orb, one of Germany's worst POW camps. Despite the sub-freezing temperatures, famine and brutalizing conditions, Michael managed to stay alive until the POW's were liberated six months later. His future son-in-law, Former Ohio Lt. Governor Lee Fisher, has written that Michael, who kept a revealing diary of his ordeal, was able to survive when younger, stronger men did not, because "He could see beyond the barbed wire and the cruelty of the guards and could see something that kept him alive. He could see his own future."

Michael J. and Mary Zone's future after World War II included the blessing of nine children, raised in the Detroit Shoreway neighborhood on Cleveland's west side where they grew up. They established a neighborhood grocery store, a community newspaper, and travel agency and, in 1960, Michael J. Zone was elected to Cleveland City Council. His legendary service continued until his unexpected death in 1974 from a heart attack attributed to the ravages of his POW experience.

After Councilman Michael J. Zone's death, City Council President George L. Forbes asked Mary Zone to serve the remainder of her husband's term. She agreed, and subsequently was re-elected to three additional terms. She was the first Italian-American woman to serve on Cleveland City Council and the first woman to serve as Council Majority Whip.

On the night of her husband's death, it

Neighborhood Family Practice (NFP) Wellness Coordinator Cheryl Sara, RN, shared tips and recipes at two classes held at the Neighborhood Family Practice Ridge Road Community Health Center on November 17th. Those in attendance, fifteen people in the first class and about eight in the second, watched as Sara prepared a number of dishes. NFP Community Engagement Coordinator Astrid Smith and NFP Director of Community Engagement Megan Meister made sure that participants could taste samples of the dishes Sara was preparing, offering ample helpings of the various dishes as they were prepared.

Tuesday, November 22, 2016; 3116 W. 54 (W. 54 & Winimac): Residents and business owners in this Stockyard neighborhood would like to see this vacant house either fixed up and occupied, or demolished. A recent fire in the house has heightened concern. The house is very close to Clark School. The house is owned by JM & JM LLC, which purchased the house in March of 2014 for $7,000. Earlier this year a dump site behind the house was cleaned up by City of Cleveland workers after a resident contacted both Councilman Kerry McCormack and the local development organization (now called Metro West).

West Side Market tenants seek rent reduction

by Chuck Hoven

In a November 17th letter to Cleveland City Council, West Side Market Tenants Association President Vince Bertonaschi requested a 25% rent reduction for tenants at the West Side Market and a two-year moratorium on any additional rent increases. In the letter, Bertonaschi notes the considerable loss of business suffered by tenants due to the sudden unannounced closing of the parking lot behind the West Side Market on April 3, 2016. The letter was accompanied by a petition signed by ninety West Side Market merchants who included their stand numbers along with their signatures. In the letter, Bertonaschi asked that the information be filed in the City Record and read to Cleveland City Council members.

In addition to the petition, Bertonaschi collected sales figures from suppliers to West Side Market tenants showing substantial losses in sales. One supplier, Sherwood Foods, indicated that sales to market merchants were down by $297,168 for the first ten months of 2016 when compared to the same time period in 2015.

In requesting the rent reduction and two-year moratorium on rent increases, the letter notes the difficulty in regaining customers once they are lost saying, "Once peoples' habits are changed, it takes time to get them back."

Already reeling from losses due to the employees and customers of large area businesses competing for parking spaces with West Side Market customers, the losses of customers during the city's refurbishing of the parking area compounded the crisis being experienced by the West Side Market tenants. The West Side Market tenants are fighting for their survival as a working market, says Bertonaschi. He reports staff layoffs by merchants, as well as merchants considering changing the type of food they sell as traditional food shopping customers are being crowded out by tourists and people waiting for tables at nearby restaurants and bars.

At a public meeting in October, the City of Cleveland offered an update on its plans for the public parking lots – the lot behind the West Side Market and the lot on the former Hicks School property. Plans, while not finalized, called for one hour of free parking and a $1 per hour fee after that up to 6 p.m. and a $2 per

TAX PREPARATION VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Free tax preparation is the gateway to financial stability and service for thousands of working families. Most low-income families are eligible for a tax refund, which is their largest source of income all year- often one-fourth of their annual income. The Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) is largely responsible for making tax time so crucial.

The EITC is the largest poverty relief program in the country, aimed at helping families with children provide basic needs and save for the future. What's more, free tax preparation increases tax compliance by encouraging families to file their taxes on time and accurately. More than one-fifth of eligible EITC filers do not claim the credit or do so incorrectly. Free tax preparation not only helps with EITC claims and accurate returns but it also provides an entry point for families to become better banked, determine eligibility for and claim public assistance, and receive financial education.

This year, Detroit Shoreway Community Development Organization and Metro West Community Development Office will be offering free tax preparation Monday-Thursday evenings and Saturday mornings starting in late January. Anyone can sign up to become a volunteer. There are greeter positions and tax preparation positions available. There is no experience necessary, just attend a Coalition led training to become certified. Sign up today by visiting www.refundohio.org

Cleveland Mayor Frank Jackson forgets where he came from

by Roldo Bartimole

Mayor Frank Jackson is soft putty in the hands of the corporate downtown plutocracy.

The mayor, from the most deprived area of the city, has allowed and perpetuated for a decade Cleveland's downtown to become a city within the city—pampered and showered with freebies.

What downtown wants, downtown gets! It has self-determination. It gets what it wants.

COMMENTARY

Concentrated wealth has been allowed concentrated endowment.

The leeches have become a giant tick on the public teat.

Jackson has become the tool of the Greater Cleveland Partnership and the Downtown Cleveland Alliance. They run the city.

Jackson has commissioned two private corporate agents to determine public matters and continued the shower of scarce public funds for their agenda. The public be damned.

I've seen mayors going back to Ralph Locher. None has been as compliant to the wishes of the downtown moguls as Jackson. Even George Voinovich was not as soft on corporate criminals as Jackson has been.

Now, with passage of the city tax increase, as I've said, he's prepared to seek an unprecedented fourth term. The ruling oligarchy will cheer this decision.

The latest move—closing Superior Avenue to public transit is just another Jackson nose thumb to those who need help the most. This time another slap at the needy transit dependent people.

Not to mention the Regional Transit Authority, an agency that could lose millions of dollars when it actually needs public support to resuscitate its funding stream.

----- Roldo Bartimole

The Superior Avenue issue—barring RTA from using buses on a street that separates the new $50 million Public Square redo—could, according to RTA officials, jeopardize some $12 million in federal funding. The money was given to RTA for commitments that require the use of Superior Avenue.

routes, RTA, already suffering public funding cuts and public (city, state and federal) indifference, will suffer further financial damage. More rate hikes for those with public transit needs.

Brent Larkin of the Plain Dealer wrote a piece this week suggesting strongly that Jackson would run again.

He also noted Jackson's reluctant rise to power after Lonnie Burten, the former councilman, suffered a young death.

Quoting Jackson, Larkin wrote: "You don't have many friends in life. You have people you know. Lonnie was a friend. And if he had not died, I would have not been a councilman, let alone a mayor."

Effort underway to keep Fifth Third Bank from closing Ohio City branch

by Chuck Hoven

A petition drive is under way to collect signatures of people who would like to keep the Fifth Third Bank branch at 3500 Lorain Avenue in the neighborhood. Fifth Third bank recently announced it would be closing the branch by the beginning of next year.

Working out of the Organize Ohio office, upstairs from where the bank is located, Charles Bromley is marshalling an effort to keep the bank branch open. Bromley says organizers working out of the Organize Ohio office are collecting signatures of people opposed to the bank closing. They are also surveying bank customers to find out why they use this bank branch. Thus far the biggest reason is location and convenience for both area businesses and residents.

Bromley says if Fifth Third Bank closes the branch, they may be in violation of a recent agreement with the National Community Reinvestment Coalition. In signing the agreement on November 18, 2016, Fifth Third Bank was widely praised for its commitment to a $30 billion community development plan for communities where it has branches. Bromley says that prior to the agreement, Fifth Third had been cited by the Federal Reserve for loan discrimination. They received a rating of "Needs to Improve," one of the poorest ratings a bank can receive. He says the agreement with the National Community Reinvestment Coalition will help Fifth Third in an effort to receive a higher rating.

An article in the Cincinnati Business Courier by reporter Steve Watkins, titled "Fifth Third gets low rating in Fed review," indicates Fifth Third Bank was cited for "a practice that allowed car dealers to charge higher interest rates to consumer auto loan borrowers on the basis of race and national origin for Fifth Third loans, another involving deceptive practices in marketing debt protection for credit cards and one involving allegations of discrimination on the basis and the receipt of public assis-

Residents urged to help maintain the historic nature of residential housing in Ohio City

by Chuck Hoven

Ohio City resident Tim Barrett, an architectural historian and historic preservation advocate, made a presentation to the Fulton/Lorain/Bailey Block Club on Saturday, November 19th urging opposition to the zoning changes proposed by the City of Cleveland Planning Department for the Ohio City neighborhood. If implemented, Barrett argued the changes would undermine the work that has been underway for decades to preserve the historic nature of residential housing in the Ohio City neighborhood.

Barrett noted what City of Cleveland proposes would change the zoning in the neighborhood from the current zoning which allows the square footage of a house to be built on a lot to be up to one half of the size of the square footage of the lot. The City of Cleveland Planning Department has proposed changing that to allow the square footage of a house to be up to 100% of the square footage of the lot. Barrett says currently for example on a 4,000 square foot lot, you could now build a 2,000 square foot house without having to apply for a variance. Under the proposed City of Cleveland plan, a 4,000 square foot house could be built on the same lot without the requirement of a variance.

Barrett said a chief historic characteristic of the Ohio City neighborhood is free standing houses with front and back yards. He said while the houses are close together side by side, they typically have green space in the front and back. He said changing the zoning to allow larger houses would eliminate much of that green space.

Barrett and local architect David Ellison showed a number of examples of houses that had received variances from the current code and now take up the entire lot and are generally higher than nearby houses.

Barrett said he feared that developers would push to tear down historic houses to build larger houses on lots in the neighborhood. He said that small workman's houses are just as historic as Franklin Castle. Replacing such houses with town houses with electric gates would greatly alter the historic pattern of housing in the neighborhood. Barrett cited the townhouses on W. 32nd and Clinton, on Rose Court across from Dave's Supermarket, and the ones on Bridge Avenue from W. 54 to W. 58 as examples of housing with no green space of consequence. He called the box houses going up on Duck Island "a poster child of what not to do."

Barrett and Ellison note that developers now need a variance to build houses larger than what the code allows. They were critical of the current city process that allows newly proposed developments to go through Design Review before they apply for a variance at the Board of Zoning Appeals. They said the applicants then come to the Board of Zoning Appeals saying their design has already been approved. They suggested that neighbors should have a chance to weigh in first on the request for a variance before the design review happens.

Barrett and Ellison argued for new housing to blend in with what is currently on the street. They said people like back yards, especially people who want to stay in the neighborhood over the long run. Ellison noted people that plan to move to a place with a yard once they decide to have children.

Barrett said the neighborhood could increase density by building larger apartment buildings along the main thoroughfares such as Lorain Avenue, Detroit Avenue and W. 25th Street.

Several block club members said they thought too many one and two bedroom apartments would just add to people moving to the neighborhood for the bar culture. The residents said they would like to see more housing available for families in the neighborhood. They cited instances where friends wanting to move to Ohio City could not find a suitable house.

One block club member said she thought the big houses were being built because the market demanded them. Barrett and Ellison argued that some of the houses being built in the neighborhood could be modified to be more similar in height and yard space as the surrounding houses. They said when people have children or a dog they will be looking to move to someplace with a yard.

Several block club members suggested one way to limit the size of housing would be to get rid of property tax abatement in the Ohio City neighborhood. They suggested the abatement just allows developers to add to their profits while building larger houses and doesn't result in much saving for the home buyers.

hour fee after 6 p.m.

The city's refurbishing of the parking area added another 128 spaces. City officials believe charging for parking will increase turnover in the lots, allowing more West Side Market shoppers to find parking spaces.

Both West Side Market merchants and neighborhood merchants sought some solution to relieve the cost of parking for employees. Mayor's Chief of Staff Ken Silliman said increasing the number of discounted employee spaces for area businesses would defeat the purpose of the parking lot plan by reducing the number of spaces available for West Side Market shoppers. Silliman promised the City of Cleveland would have a parking system at the West Side Market that is easy to use. At the October meeting he said, "Simplicity is absolutely where we are at. We are not going to invest in a dysfunctional system."

No date has been announced as to when the new parking charges at the West Side Market will begin. At the City Council Meeting on Monday November 21st, Cleveland City Council gave authorization to the City of Cleveland administration to hire a contractor to manage the parking area behind the market for the next three years.

COUNCILMAN ZONE

took over 50 minutes for an ambulance to arrive at their home. The delay infuriated Mary and many people in their west side neighborhood and all over Cleveland. As a result, Mary’s first legislative initiative was the successful establishment of the Emergency Medical Service (EMS) unit in Cleveland, one of the very first of its kind in America and the world.

Mary Zone’s proudest day during her public service was when Mayor George Voinovich and Cleveland City Council dedicated the Michael J. Zone Recreation Center in her ward. Councilman Michael Zone had been a tireless advocate for building a quality recreation center on Cleveland’s west side, and was successful in lobbying the Ohio state legislature to kill legislation which would have used the land that the recreation center now occupies to build a state route highway tie-in.

Michael and Mary’s 8th child, Matt, has continued his family’s deep-rooted legacy of public service for the last 15 years since he was elected Cleveland City Council. In November, 2001 he took his seat representing Ward 15, which includes the Detroit-Shoreway neighborhood where he and generations of his family grew up and served their beloved community for over 55 years.

During September 2016, Councilman Matt Zone traveled to Shanghai upon the invitation of the China Society of Administrative Reform to be a keynote speaker at their forum on “Urban Governance in the Context of New Trends of Urbanization: Challenges and Responses.” Councilman Zone gave a presentation on the topic of “Joint Economic Development Agreements” which permit a regional approach to economic development by sharing the benefits and responsibilities of commercial and industrial development through cooperation and contracts between communities.

Matt is recognized nationally, regionally and locally as a leader on environmental and arts & cultural issues. On the national level, he now serves as President – Elect of the National League of Cities, the United States oldest and largest organization representing 19,000 cities, towns and villages, serving more than 218 million Americans. The first (and last) Clevelander to hold the position of President of the National League of Cities was former US Senator George Voinovich, who served as its President in 1985 while Mayor of Cleveland. In 2017, Councilman Matt Zone will be the second Clevelander to be honored as the President of the National League of Cities.

Regionally, Councilman Zone has served as President of the Northeast Ohio City Council Association (NOCCA) and is one of the founding members of the Great Lakes Energy Development Task Force, which is working to create offshore wind generation in Lake Erie. Matt also serves on the steering committee of the Regional Prosperity Initiative (RPI), which is working to create a “Smart Growth” plan and “Revenue Sharing” for Northeast Ohio.

Locally, Councilman Zone continues to be a tireless advocate for alternative energy and green building. His district is home to the only “EcoVillage” in the State of Ohio and one of the first in the United States. An EcoVillage is a community of people creating a way of living that sustains healthy ecological relationships by offering an alternative model that strives to replace consumption and waste with preservation and regeneration. The Cleveland EcoVillage is complete with an LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) built school, theatre and certified Regional Transit Authority (RTA) rapid station, as well as highly energy efficient homes that heat and cool for less than $500 annually and a model storm water demonstration project on 25-acre city recreational facility.

As a devoted supporter of the arts, this second-generation Zone believes the arts and culture community can serve as an economic generator. As soon as he took office, Councilman Zone set to work on a strategic plan to reinvigorate his ward’s main thoroughfare -- Detroit Avenue. He drew upon the diverse culture and his love of the arts as a catalyst to save the community. He has been the driving force behind the development of the Gordon Square Arts District, which is comprised of new housing and businesses, retail development and the construction and renovation of three theaters. Councilman Zone also sponsored the City of Cleveland’s “Percent for Arts” legislation, which requires all applicable capital improvement projects over $300,000 to set aside 1.5 percent of the total budget to include artists in their design. He serves as council’s representative on the city’s Public Art committee.

Councilman Zone’s background is quite diverse, and includes being a trained mediator and urban planner. He has worked with city constituents over the years and helped to empower stakeholders in the decision making process. Matt also has extensive experience fostering innovation, engagement and collaborative action across community sectors.

INDIVIDUALS WITH DISABILITIES

THE WORKPLACE INITIATIVE OF OHIO (WIO) project is a collaboration between Opportunities for Ohioans with Disabilities Agency (OOD) and the Ohio Business Leadership Network (OHBLN). The premise was to directly source OOD consumers in jobs with OHBLN members in the Cleveland and other areas. It will continue to find skilled, qualified workers for its employer partners. For more information, visit <http://ood.ohio.gov/Employers/Ohio-Business-Leadership-Network>.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR OHIOANS WITH DISABILITIES AGENCY (OOD) has launched OODWorks.com vocational rehabilitation portal. The website provides information about OOD's VR services and has an online application, allowing a more streamlined and efficient process. This initial step ensures that individuals do not have to spend their first visit expending time filling out an application. Instead, that time can be used to get the individual started on their path to employment.

On Wednesday, November 16, Menlo Park Academy, a school which specializes in serving gifted children, broke ground on its renovation of the historic Joseph & Feiss Clothing Company property on W. 53rd in the Stockyard neighborhood's Fenwick area. When the renovation is completed, Menlo Park Academy plans to move the school from Triskett Road in the West Park neighborhood to the W. 53rd site.

Menlo Park Academy currently serves over 400 students and hopes to be able to serve nearly twice as many students at the 7-acre Joseph and Feiss site in a main building which is nearly 80,00 square feet. Menlo Park Academy is a charter school that will partner with the Cleveland Metropolitan School District as part of the Cleveland Plan. Charter schools approved for the plan, receive a portion of the funds from the Cleveland School Operating Levy just renewed by Cleveland voters.

Menlo Park Academy, a Kindergarten through eighth grade non-profit community school for gifted learners, was founded in 2008 by parents seeking to find appropriate educational option for their gifted children. The plan, according to Fraser Hamilton, a Menlo Park Academy parent and board member, is for the newly renovated school to be ready for the 2017-2018 school year. (Menlo Park Academy plans new school for Joseph & Feiss site, August 2016 Plain Press).

Menlo Park sees its mission to develop the potential of gifted learners through an exemplary program of rewarding experiences that nurtures the whole child. The school draws students living throughout the county. Cleveland Metropolitan School District Executive Director of Charter Schools Stephanie Klupinski says Menlo Park Academy plans to increase their student population overall and also hopes to increase their population of students from Cleveland.

Jackson pauses, smiles, then finishes the thought: "Lonnie used to say, 'Frank, you gotta speak up more.' I would say, 'Lonnie, that ain't my role.' But I also told him, 'At the right time, I will.'"

However, to paraphrase, "I knew Lonnie, and Jackson is no Lonnie Burten."

The groundbreaking event was a special ceremony that brought together the community, and the individuals and organizations that made the development possible. The building, which has been vacant for nearly 20 years, will undergo extensive renovation with the $17-million raised. The complex financing package includes over $10 million in tax credits and grant funds including State of Ohio and Federal Historic Tax Credits, State and Federal New Market Tax Credits, and a grant from the Ohio Facilities Construction Commission.

In attendance at the ceremony were key partners of Menlo Park Academy's (MPA) success in securing the funds to finance the renovation including: PNC Reginal President Paul Clark, Your CFO Resource President Betsy Figgie, and Reinvestment Fund VP of Strategic Investments Sara Vernon-Sterman. Other speakers included: Ohio Facilities and Construction Services Chief of Facility and Program Services Jeffrey Westhoven and IFF Vice President and Executive Director Kirby Burkholder.

PNC Regional President Paul Clark stated in his ceremony remarks, it's "a facility worthy of the investment".

City of Cleveland officials in attendance included City of Cleveland Community Development Director Michael Cosgrove, Ward 3 Coun-cilperson Kerry McCormack, and Cleveland City Council President Kevin Kelley. Cosgrove and McCormack spoke of the positive influence they expect the development to have on the surrounding community, while Kelley spoke of the importance of a school dedicated to the special needs of gifted learners in the Cleveland area.

For more information on Menlo Park Academy and student qualifications, visit www.MenloParkAcademy.com.

Wednesday, November 16, 2016; W. 53rd Street, former site of Joseph & Feiss Clothing Company: Groundbreaking ceremony for the new Menlo Park Academy

Jackson has become too enamored with himself. It happens at a time when the news media is at its lowest power point.

I wrote some time ago: The Councilman who proudly showed himself as the man of and with the people is now Mayor and patsy of the rich. A toady to power.

A corrupted progeny of Lonnie Burten. He knows what I mean.

Jackson used one the most comical of reasons to close Superior Ave. to vehicle use. He had his Safety Director Michael McGrath, in a letter to the Regional Transit Authority (RTA), claims terror as a reason for closing the street.

How pathetic.

He wrote that opening the street could encourage a terrorist to use a "cargo truck" to plow into people.

Why not close the air space over Public Square since a drone could drop a bomb on people? Makes as much sense to me.

This is especially true when you need a reason to do something unreasonable.

I'm not at city hall these days so I don't know the details that would tell me exactly what's going on politically in the city. However, I've been there and I know that a challenge to a mayor ripe for attack requires someone to begin to prepare the political atmosphere for change.

I don't see this happening. Not a smart politician in sight.

But it must. This city needs a shaker up. Badly.

Jackson would deserve it if RTA Chief Executive Officer Joseph Calabrese, a guy who has done an excellent job operating a tough and formerly troubled agency, tells him that this is the last straw: "Here's my resignation. I'm leaving. I'll wait until you find a replacement. But count me out. I'm not part of this debacle called Cleveland."

a lite whip cream. Participants scooped up the dip with graham crackers. Other dishes Sara demonstrated included a salad featuring raw Brussel sprouts, carrots and romaine lettuce, and a kale salad with diced apples, onions and a dressing made from maple syrup, vinegar, oil and a dash of salt and pepper.

Sara also offered tips for cooking turkey, stuffing, and low calorie pumpkin pie. She urged participants to look for recipes in Cooking Light or Weight Watchers magazines. She also said she found recipes on the American Heart Association and Cooking Matters websites. Sara says she picks recipes that are easy and quick to make and involve just a few ingredients. She said a number of the recipes chosen for the class involved ingredients that were now on sale at one of the local grocery stores.

Each participant attending the workshops received a free turkey as well as a meat thermometer. They also received a booklet with Healthy Holiday Recipes and a number of the recipes that were demonstrated in the class including one for a pie dough.

Sara says she plans another workshop this winter on cooking with a crock pot. The workshops were made possible through the support of Molina Health.

FIFTH THIRD BANK

tance." The article also says that the low rating would count against Fifth Third in any application for a merger or acquisition of another bank.

The agreement between Fifth Third Bank and the National Community Reinvestment Coalition's (NCRC) is praised on both organizations websites. A statement about the agreement on the Fifth Third Bank website indicates that one of the promises of the agreement involves bank branches. "The Fifth Third Impact programming includes branch and staff commitments. Fifth Third will seek to open at least 10 more branches in LMI (low and moderate income) and/or high minority communities," says the Fifth Third Bank statement about the agreement.

Bromley says the Fifth Third branch at 3500 Lorain Avenue has "$18 million in deposits and provides services to low income people in the neighborhood as well as merchants." He notes the bank is also on two major bus lines – the Lorain Avenue and Fulton bus lines- and serves a large Hispanic population.

Bromley sees Fifth Third Bank's plans to close the branch as a violation of the branch and staff commitments Fifth Third just made in the agreement with the NCRC. He says if the branch closes, the nearest Fifth Third branch will be in Tremont on Professor Avenue.

Once the signatures on the petition are gathered, Bromley says a public meeting will be called. Individuals interested in attending the meeting or signing the petition can contact Organize Ohio at 216-651-2606 for more information.

Editor's Historical Note: The Fifth Third bank branch is located on the first floor of a bank building at 3500 Lorain Avenue built in 1918 as a Cleveland Trust Bank Branch. The building was rehabbed in 2003 through a partnership of Ohio City Near West Development Corporation (now Ohio City Inc.), The Cleveland Green Building Coalition and Cleveland Urban Properties. It became home of the Cleveland Environmental Center. At the time the rehab was touted as the first commercial green rehabilitation project in the State of Ohio. The bank branch on the first floor of the building was viewed as a major anchor which helped make the project feasible.
